Interworks Launches New Essentials Programs and Mastery Practices

DENVER, CO, January 15, 2019 – Interworks® is pleased to announce our new Essentials Programs and Mastery Practices, Interworks' answer to the growing need for professional development that quickly expands capacity and capability for leaders and professionals to excel in today's business environment.

"Our Essentials Programs and Mastery Practices are designed to help participants re-wire the brain, break habitual ways of thinking and instill new patterns of belief and behavior that support productivity and performance over time," says Managing Partner, Anne McGhee-Stinson. "We have curated and tested an impactful portfolio of programs and yearlong learning experiences that soft skill capability and help professionals and leaders advance or get back on track to learn and achieve what matters most to them." says Anne.

Both series' complement and elevate the Interworks core curriculum that includes the Effective Edge® and Best Year Yet® programs, utilized by the Fortune 500 worldwide for decades to transform the way work – and life gets done. The Essentials starting line-up of programs includes Resiliency@Work, Leaders@Work, Conversations@Work and Innovation@Work and are delivered onsite and remotely to groups and teams worldwide. The Mastery Practices are offered via a live remote webcast bi-monthly for all Interworks alumni, providing an opportunity to share challenges, learnings, best practices, and thought leadership in the space of producing results in business and in life.

"Our clients are leveraging these unique programs for a variety of applications including talent development, leadership tracks, learning academies, and even combining them with our core programs to create a learning plan for various levels and roles", shared Anne. "We are thrilled with the feedback so far and are even more excited about the developing Mastery Practices which will open up a brand-new offering to add even more value for our client partners and expand community in alignment with our mission and purpose. Soft skills are the new "power skills" and professionals in the next generation of leadership will have to balance hard skill knowledge with essential skills that have proven to be the differentiator in generating high performance value to organizations."
